A Hermit in a Big City.

Various indeed are the ways in which eccentric people indulge their little peculiarities, but a decidedly original manner has been adopted by an old lady living here. On one of the grand boulevards stands a house with closed shutters and fastened door. Scarcely a sign of life is there about the place, and the house has remained in a similar state over a quarter of a century. The owner is an old lady who on Sept. 4, 1870, the day on which the republic was proclaimed, resolutely determined that no one affected by republican ideas should ever cross the threshold of her dwelling. To avoid any such dreadful contingency she simply declined to allow any one inside and has refused all offers to hire either apartments or the shop below.

The only time she breaks through her hard and fast rule is when workmen are permitted to enter in order to carry on repairs. Painters, carpenters, locksmiths and masons once a year in turn invade her privacy and make good any damage. To relatives whose political tendencies are the same as her own she is particularly gracious, but at the death of each one an apartment in the building is sealed up, and now all are closed barring the very small one at the back of the house which this antirepublican hermit reserves for her own use and that of her three servants. This strange behavior on the part of the old lady has repeatedly excited comment and numerous have been the attempts of people to gain an entrance by some ruse or other. All their efforts are foiled by an aged servant, who guards the front door with dragonlike vigilance, and the would be intruder soon finds the portal slammed in his face and himself none the wiser for his curiosity.—Paris Cor. London Telegraph.

The Bear and the Wheelman.

Right in the middle of the track was a black bear about 4 feet high and 6 feet long. We had never seen bruin before outside the zoo or in the cage of a perambulating menagerie. So we were interested, and the interest took the shape of a tightness across the chest and a quickness of breathing such as you feel when easy and happy go lucky in your mind. The bear was interested in us and evidently glad to see us. He gave a grunt, slowly wagged his head and began to advance. At first we thought of amusing him by reminiscences of stale buns given to his species when we were younger and less callous of heart. Yet we cocked our revolvers in case there should be any disputing the fact, though we knew a bullet from a six shooter would have as much effect upon the hide of a bear as a pea shoot'r would have in wounding an elephant.

"Now, don't fire until he's within arm's reach. Then drive into his eyes or open mouth." That was the arrangement.

We halted ready for action. So did our friend the enemy, and we saw he was scanning us with scornful eyes. He moved to get a side view. "He's faking it; he's frightened," we said, with lowered voice. By way of answer the bear came on four strides at a trot, and up went the revolvers.

"Don't shoot, don't shoot, till he's nearer."

Brain hesitated. He was considering. He was something of a philosopher and evidently thought: "They are only a couple of lanky, fleshless cyclists. What would be the good of killing them?"

On which sage reflection he turned about and snatched up the mountain side.—Travel

Oliver Cromwell's Court.

The protector's wife's order of eating and mealtimes were thus regulated. First of all at the ringing of a bell dined the halberdiers, or men of the guard, with the inferior officers. Then the same bell rang again and the steward's table was set for the better sort of those that waited on their highnesses—ten of whom were apportioned to a table or mess, one of which was chosen by themselves every week for steward, and he gave the clerk of the kitchen the bill of fare, as was agreed upon generally every morning. To these ten men and what friends should casually come to visit them the value of 10 shillings, in what flesh or fish soever they would have, with a bottle of sack and two of claret, was apportioned. Suppers they had none, eggs or some slaps (?) contenting Cromwell and her ladyship, and to his exemplar all was conformed. In lieu thereof for the family there was constantly boiled eight stone of beef early in the morning, to keep her retainers in heart and in earnest of a dinner, the broth whereof and all the scraps and reliques of dinner were alternately given to the poor of St. Margaret's, Westminster and St. Martin's in the Fields.

One of the earliest lives of the protector, "The Perfect Politician," states that he gave a public dinner "every Monday in the week to all the officers of the army not below a captain, where he used to dine with him. A table was likewise spread every day of the week for such officers as should casually come to the court." Occasionally there were solemn entertainments to a foreign ambassador or some public body.—Cornhill Magazine

Samory's Censorship of News.

Samory's son Karamoko was sent to Paris some years ago and brought back graphic accounts of the wealth and power of France. Samory listened to his story and remarked: "You are my very dear son. I counsel you to forget all you have told me and to let no one learn you found the French so strong." Karamoko, however, spoke out again on seeing his father preparing for another raid, so the latter had him immured in an earthen hut, where he was left to die, with a pitcher of water to prolong his agony. Five days later Samory opened the living grave and as the youth still breathed strangled him with his own hands. "So may all perish," he cried, "who think of making peace with the French invader."—London Chronicle.

Putting the baby to bed is the good-night joy of a happy day to a healthy mother. Many mothers delegate this motherly duty to a nurse. Some mothers hardly see their baby the live-long day. This is not because they are without mother-love or the natural impulses of a womanly woman. It is because of their own ill-health and broken nerves, and because baby is sickly and peevish. This unfortunate state of affairs might have been avoided had the mother, during the period of expectant motherhood, taken the right care of the delicate organs that make maternity possible. A woman should always keep these important organs well and strong. Her own health and that of her child depend upon it.

The best medicine for prospective mothers is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes healthy and strong the organs that bear the burdens of maternity. It cures all disease and weakness. It makes comfortable the period preceding motherhood and renders the advent of baby easy and nearly painless. It insures a healthy child. The pains and suffering that women endure, as a result of weakness of the distinctly womanly organism, vanish under its use. All good druggists sell it. There is nothing else "just as good."

"I want to tell you," writes Mrs. N. A. Thomas, of 400 Pulaski Street, Little Rock, Ark., "that my daughter, Mrs. Lawrence, who lives in Texarkana, Ark., had been under the doctor's care for four years. I lately sent her word to try the medicine which cured me, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and I have just heard that it has done her more good than all the doctors."

"The People's Common Sense Adviser" explains symptoms of ailments common to every family, and suggests remedies. It has several chapters on woman's diseases and weaknesses. An edition in heavy paper covers will be distributed absolutely free. Send the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., 21 one-cent stamps, to pay the cost of mailing only. Cloth binding may be had for 10 cents extra—31 cents in all.

A PLOT TO DEFEAT HANNA.

President McKinley, though he may be as variable as the wind on the monetary and Cuban questions, is very much devoted to his friend Hanna and the doubt as to Hanna's election to the Senate in Ohio is causing much distress in the executive bosom. Last Monday the press bureau at Washington sent to several papers in Ohio an article headed "A Plot to Defeat Hanna." It appears that Major Dick, the gentleman who hired delegates to the Ohio Populist State Convention to make anti-fusion speeches and nominate Coxey for Governor, received convincing information that ex-Chairman Kurtz of the Republican State Committee had enough Republican and Democratic votes pledged to defeat Hanna, eight Republicans being in the combination. This aroused the Administration at Washington and the plot-to-defeat-Hanna article was immediately prepared and sent to the leading Republican papers in Ohio for publication. The article says, among other things, that the defeat of Hanna means the loss of the State for the Republicans for many years, and, therefore, the defeat of Kurtz's friend Foraker, when his term expires. It also says that the Senatorship is the subject of frequent conversation on the part of the President, in which his anxiety for the election of Hanna is clearly indicated, both by reason of personal friendship and because he recognizes that the defeat of Hanna would be an attack upon the Administration.

The State of Ohio gave McKinley a plurality of 47,467 in 1896. A year later M. A. Hanna, who was recognized as McKinley's trainer and coachman and who collected $16,000,000 from the trusts and combines to purchase votes to elect him, was a candidate for election to the United States Senate. In 1897 the Republicans had a majority of 25 in the Senate and a majority of 62 in the House. In the next Legislature, with Hanna a candidate for Senator, the Senate will have a Democratic majority and the House will be very near a tie. If that is not "an attack upon the Administration," whether Mr. Hanna shall be elected or not, what is required to constitute "an attack?"

Judge Mack somewhat astonished the officials of Douglas county yesterday when he excused the old Grand Jury and drew a new one. When the Court was informed that District Attorney Nagle was in Carson and would not be present to take up the lynching matter, Judge Mack without mincing words announced that the District Attorney had not acted right and he should at once appoint a new District Attorney as provided by statute. Attorney Targuer declined the appointment and Mr. Virgin was appointed. The latter stated that he opposed the Court meant for him to act temporarily. Judge Mack promptly replied, "Mr. Virgin you are now District Attorney of Douglas county and you may remain so for months." The Judge then scored Sheriff Brookliss and said the Grand Jury would be instructed to investigate his course regarding the lynching and to find whether or no he was fit to remain Sheriff of Douglas county any longer. He paid his compliments to the Commissioners and stated that the jury would also inquire into their acts.

Judge Mack not only surprised the officers, but has made a decidedly uncomfortable feeling prevail among some of the residents of the county. The new Grand Jury will meet on the 12th of January.

FITZSIMMONS has at last decided to enter the ring and defend his so-called right to the title of champion. This announcement will doubtless cause a ripple of excitement over the country as far as sporting men are concerned, but the general public will experience a sense of relief in knowing that the great question of whether Fitz would or Fitz wouldn't has at last been settled. The query now that will agitate the public mind will be regarding the place Fitz will choose to defend his right to the title. Carson will doubtless be selected if satisfactory transportation arrangements can be made.

The War Department has directed Captain Brainard to advertise for army rations for 1,000 men for 100 days, the supplies to be delivered at Dyea by February 1st. Captain Brainard recommends that condensed foods be not taken, as their nutritive value is greatly exaggerated. He says bacon, rice, sugar, coffee, tea and chocolate are the best foods for Alaska. The supplies are to be taken from Dyea to Dawson City as soon as possible, so as to relieve the miners who are short of provisions, if any there be.

ANOTHER trust has been organized in New York with Levi P. Morton as President. Mr. Morton was formerly Vice President of the United States and was a candidate for the Republican nomination for President last year. It is in accordance with the eternal fitness of things, when a Republican cannot get office from his party, that he should be provided for by making him president or director of a trust organized for the purpose of fleecing the public, and licensed by Congress to do so.

PRINCE BISMARCK, the Iron Chancellor, is crosser than a bear with a sore head. His gout is worse and he cannot walk, sleep, read or write, but he can swear.

The Great Dane Dog.

The Great Dane, the exhibition dog of today and growing every day in favor as a beautiful and biddable dog, is the modern representative of the boarhound. On the continent, where its Danish origin is repudiated, it is called the German mastiff, and under this head all its varieties are classed at shows, while in this country we call it the Great Dane and catalogue under that name all the varieties of German mastiff, so that, taking the one with the other, the dog comes by its rights.

It is a beautiful creature, this Great Dane, and gives the impression at once of both power and activity and its temper—look at its small, keen eyes—is exactly what one might expect from a dog of war and of the chase veneered with the elegancies of civilization, for it is equable and (as he has on his) good tempered, but woe to the object that irritates it. The conciliatory stranger who goes to pat one as if it were a lap dog finds a great blunt muzzle thrust forcibly and roughly into his hand or perhaps into his ribs, as who should say: "All right, old fellow, I'm not going to hurt you. You needn't pat me and call me good dog." He never awaits your permission to make your acquaintance, but introduces himself without formality if he wishes to know you. Going through a narrow passage, a Great Dane will take up more than half the room. He does not drop behind like the elegant mannered St. Bernard with a polite "man before dogs" sort of air, but hustles you robustly for equal space. Not that he is a dangerous dog. He is simply a boarhound, a creature of immense strength and infinite courage and courteous only out of condescension.—Good Words.

Telephones In Bed.

One of the most ingenious applications of the telephone is the portable form, which is known as the portable hospital telephone. Its particular use is to enable people in a sickroom in which an infectious disease is being nursed to communicate with the people in the rest of the house.

In hospitals this simple adaptation of the telephone to the requirements of the situation will be found invaluable, but an even greater field for its utility will be the private house.

The irksomeness of having some of the infectious diseases in a mild form is multiplied tenfold by the enforced seclusion of the patient, who is suddenly cut off from intercourse with the rest of the family. Now, by the mere addition of this little instrument to the furniture of the apartment, it is possible for a sick person to keep up a conversation with any member of the rest of the family, and in this way the tedious which is inseparable from the compulsory isolation may be relieved.

Furthermore, the nurse will by its means be saved a good many journeys, even in noninfectious cases, for she can ask for things to be brought to her at odd times which in the ordinary course she would have to go for, or at least ring a bell and have some one come to the door to ask what she required.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Limit.

"You are a nice little boy," said the kindly old gentleman at the hotel. "Thank you," said Tommie. "Have you any little brothers?" "Yes," said Tommie, "I've got brothers to burn, but I'm rather short on papas. We've only got one."—Harper's.

H. J. Thyes' popular resort affords special attractions in the way of comfort, quietness, good reading and card rooms. His noon-day lunches are always superior. Hot tamales are a specialty and all of the hot and fancy drinks are obtainable.

Sheriff McInnis visited Virginia yesterday to verify the statements of Wotton, the suspected Steamboat Springs robber, regarding his movements on Friday and Saturday. The Sheriff found that Wotton's stories were not as truthful as they might be. There are no new developments in the case, but circumstances point very strongly toward Wotton being the man wanted.

I have just received a complete and well selected stock of gents' furnishing goods, underwear, overshirts, socks, suspenders, handkerchiefs, ties, etc., which I guarantee to be equal if not better than any in the town, which I will sell at prices that defy competition. My stock of domestic and imported cigars and tobaccos is complete in every particular, comprising such brands as the Nerve, Carl Dunder and Royal in the 5-cent goods, and El Belmont, Sanchez, Hays, De Vallens, Internations, Hotel Brunswick, General Arthur and many others in the imported goods. Call and be satisfied. Free employment office in connection with the store.

The Governor Tells the East Something of Our Resources.

On Monday the Governor received a letter from C. K. Reifender, editor of Farm-Machinery, a St. Louis publication, which is the representative journal of over 1,000 implement and vehicle manufacturers and 60,000 retail dealers in agricultural machinery, asking for an article descriptive of the agricultural resources of Nevada to appear in a special edition of one million copies to be issued on the first of the year. The Governor replied as follows:

CARSON CITY, Nev., Dec. 27, 1897.
C. K. Reifender—Dear Sir: Nevada has an area of 110,000 square miles and a great diversity of climate. In the northern counties adjoining Oregon and Idaho the extremes of temperature are as great as in the upper Mississippi valley.

In the southern part of the State, which is bounded by the Colorado river, the climate is semi-tropical, orange, figs, cotton and other products of southern climes flourish and mature, bountiful crops resulting. In the valley of the Humboldt the wheat crop averages over 45 bushels to the acre. Here may be seen the most improved farm machinery. Gang plows drawn by twenty animals, and combined harvesters and threshers which reap twenty or thirty acres of grain a day and deliver it in bags ready for market. The dry climate peculiar to this country in the harvest season enables the farmer to cut and thresh his grain at the same time.

We have abundance of rich soil, capable of producing all kinds of grain, fruit and vegetables peculiar to the temperate zone, but water is scarce, though there is sufficient, if stored, to irrigate millions of acres. Those who made millions from the great gold and silver bonanzas have invested it elsewhere, and as Congress will make no appropriation to get land and water together and our home resources are limited, we have to wait until eastern capital realizes the advantages for investment afforded by Nevada, when our State will be among the most prosperous in the Union. We have the most salubrious climate and more sunshine to the square mile than any other known place in North America.

Very respectfully,
REINHOLD SADLER,
Governor of Nevada.

Trans-Mississippi International Exposition.

The Trans-Mississippi International Exposition will be held at Omaha from June to November, 1898. The idea of the Exposition occurred to the members of the Trans-Mississippi Commercial Congress which was held in Omaha in 1895. Twenty-four States were represented. The idea grew until resolutions were adopted that finally called for the organization of a corporation with a capital stock of $1,000,000. Under an act of Congress approved by President Cleveland in June, 1896, the project was recognized to be national as well as international and an appropriation of $200,000 was made to defray the expenses of the government buildings, necessary exhibits, etc., and in June, 1897, President McKinley approved an item in the Civil Sanitary bill in connection with the act of last year. All foreign exhibits will be admitted free of duty. Iowa, Illinois, Montana, Utah and other States have already made liberal appropriations for State exhibits at the Exposition. The City of Omaha has contributed $30,000 and will doubtless increase this sum to $100,000. It is estimated that the attendance will reach $2,500,000 and if the conditions are generally favorable this estimate will be largely exceeded.

The buildings will be substantial and of beautiful design. Already a number are in course of construction and work will be pushed rapidly.

Colonel H. B. Maxson of Reno has been appointed one of the State Vice Presidents, vice W. J. Westerfield, resigned. Colonel Maxson is very anxious for the people of Nevada to take advantage of the opportunity offered and make a fine exhibit of the products of the State, both in mineral and agricultural. He proposes to devote much of his time in the next six months in gathering exhibits, arranging and shipping them. He has secured a choice space of 500 square feet for Nevada and although the managers were offered inducements to cut the space down or put Nevada on one side, Colonel Maxson insisted on holding it, and on the bluff "That without Nevada there would be no Exposition," he managed to retain it. In most instances the space must be paid for at the rate of 50 cents per foot, but Nevada has made no appropriation, hence the Colonel was compelled to use his persuasive qualities and a few dollars of his own money in securing the requisite space. It is necessary, of course, to have some concerted action to carry out the plans for an exhibit and with this in view Colonel Maxson would like the papers and the people generally throughout the State to talk up the exhibit. He will furnish information or literature regarding the proposed exposition, giving in detail a description of the various buildings and the attractions. Hotel facilities and low railroad rates from all points will be secured and the particulars published at an early day.

As long as the Trans-Mississippi States are taking such an active interest in the coming exposition it will not do for Nevada to remain in the background.

It may be urged that Nevada's exhibit at the New Orleans Exposition, Chicago World's Fair and the Mid-Winter Fair at San Francisco did not aid the State in any direct way, but whether the efforts named aid or did not do any apparent good, it is good business tact to keep trying and particularly so where there is no great expense attached.

Royal makes the food pure, wholesome and delicious.

A few hundred dollars judiciously expended will make a good showing and the reward may come later.

Marriages, Births, Deaths.

Two hundred and forty-nine marriages, 172 births and 206 deaths have been entered on the records at the Recorder's office from January 1, 1895, to the present date, three full years lacking three days. Taking the figures as a whole they do not indicate as correct a record as there should be. For instance, take the marriages. With the boom Reno has had in this line, owing to the law governing divorced people in California, for the past year the record ought certainly to have exceeded the number given above. However the scarcity of money and the existing conditions may have the same effect on the matrimonial business that it has on other industries. Deducting the transient marriages as they might be termed from the number given would leave the local happenings of a like nature at less than 200, or an average of about sixty a year. For a thriving community of 5,000 souls this seems like a small number.

In the matter of births, only 172 or an average of fifty-six are recorded per year. The law requires that every birth shall be recorded, but the above figures indicate that the law is not strictly adhered to on the part of those present or directly interested in such notable events. There is a penalty attached in connection with this law and it will be well to give it a little more attention.

The number of deaths recorded for the three years, viz., 206, seems like an excessive mortality when compared with mortality tables compiled by life insurance companies. The death rate in such tables, taking different ages into consideration, runs from eight to twelve per thousand according to age, locality, conditions, etc. The deaths recorded show a fraction over sixty-eight per year, or in round numbers, basing the population of Reno at 5,000, would make a rate of fourteen deaths per year to the 1,000 inhabitants. This excess can be accounted for by the fact that many persons come here in search of health when in the last stages of disease, and the change from often hastens death and consequently adds to the record. In comparison however, as far as our own residents are concerned, the death rate is far below the usual average, running as low as 6 and a fraction to the 1,000 inhabitants, demonstrating the healthfulness of the climate as well as general conditions.

Death of John Spiekerman.

Mr. John Spiekerman, the Western Union Telegraph Co.'s lineman, stationed at Reno for the past two years, died at the German Hospital in San Francisco yesterday morning, after a tedious illness from typhoid fever of several months duration.

He was a man of about 39 years of age, of considerable travel, having been all over the world and had made the circuit of the globe a couple of times. He will be greatly missed by a host of friends in Reno, as well as in San Francisco and the Coast States generally, to whom he was endeared by a sterling honesty of character and a cheerful generosity in all things. He leaves a brother in St. Louis, Mo., and many relatives in his native country—Germany. Mr. Spiekerman was a member of Reno Lodge, No. 19 I. O. O. F. and the Sons of Herman, San Francisco. His remains will be interred at the latter place.

Pete French Reported Killed.

A report from Canyon City, Oregon, is to the effect that J. W. French, better known as Pete French, has been shot and killed by one of his neighbors in a dispute about land. French was one of the largest land and cattle owners in the State of Oregon. Some years ago he married a daughter of the late Hugh J. Glenn, who was a candidate for Governor of California at the time of the adoption of the new constitution, and the man for whom the county of Glenn was named.

On a Sad Mission.

Mr. Geo. Flursbush, well known in Reno, formerly employed with Block & Clausen, but now at Wadsworth, received news Monday of the serious illness of his little son at Placerville. He left Wadsworth on the evening train in the hope that he could reach Placerville in time to see him alive, but the boy died yesterday morning before Mr. Flursbush arrived.

George has the deep and sincere sympathy of his many Reno friends.

The Grand Jury of Douglas County will investigate the lynching.

The Grand Jury of Douglas county was empaneled yesterday by Judge Mack and charged to make a full investigation of the recent lynching at Genoa. It is rumored that enough evidence has been secured to warrant the indictment of a number of those connected with the lynching of Ober. It is seldom, indeed, that persons implicated in lynchings are convicted or even prosecuted, but Douglas county may prove an exception to the general rule. The correspondent of the Examiner is said to be able to give the Grand Jury the names of the lynchers, but that may be an idle boast. We shall see, however, as a few days will determine whether or not the jury will find an indictment against any of the alleged lynchers.
